Reader's Advisory

How is the practice of research changing? ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization helping the academic community use digital technologies to preserve the scholarly record and to advance scholarship, has just released its findings on this topic. ITHAKA worked with faculty from Cornell University to learn more about the daily routine of select faculty and students with respect to their current research practices. ITHAKA believes this study can help libraries to envision future space, collection and technology needs. But the report can also inform researchers about how their practices may be similar or different from that of others working in the field. The report "A Day in the Life of a (Serious) Researcher: Envisioning the Future of the Research Library" can be accessed here:
