Recommended Current Periodical Readings:

Selected and Annotated by: Patrick Riley, Syr. Arch'22

Broackes, Victoria. "From Nice Ideas to Their Mortal Remains: Pink Floyd at the V&A". Architectural Design. Vol. 274, Issue 6 (Nov.-Dec. 2021). p.104-111.

"Yet the willingness to see what permutations are possible, to use things in different ways and times than originally intended, is the essence of unorthodox, collaborative creativity. The spirit of Mark Fisher's thinking is in the DNA of STUFISH's work; times of change are an opportunity for innovation – time for some Nice ideas" (111).

Buschfeld, Ben. "Ikonen Bewohnen = Living in Icons". AIT: Architektur Innenarchitektur Technischer Ausbau". (Nov. 2021). p.44-47.

"In Bruno Taut's design refurbished from 2010 to 2012, visitors can go on a little time journey, rent it for a few days and immerse themselves in the architecture avantgarde of the 1920s. An innovative exhibition concept which still succeeds in making guests and specialists enthusiastic even after almost ten years and that has already brought the project numerous awards” (44).

Coppens, Tom, Maarten Van Acker, Thomas Machiels, and Tine Compernelle. “A Real Options Framework for Adaptive Urban Design”. Journal of Urban Design. Vo. 26, Issue 6 (Dec. 2021). p.681-698.

“Moreover, a systematic monitoring system for implementation and post-occupancy analysis of the masterplan that are needed to exercise options are currently not standard practice. Major breakthroughs will be required in these domains and more empirical evidence on the actual use of real options reasoning in urban design will be needed to make urban masterplans more futureproof.

Ding, Guanghui. “Embodied ‘Emancipation’: Architects, Technocrats, and the Shaping of the Canton Fair in 1970s China”. The Journal of Architecture. Vo.. 26, Issue (Nov. 2021). p.969-999.

“I argue that the Guangzhou Foreign Trade Project embodied multiple forms of emancipation, both as a passive product of social, economic, political, and diplomatic liberation and as an active vehicle to further spatial, perceptual, and mental emancipation” (969).

Habes, David, Bart de Hartog, Ira Koer, and Thijs de Zeeuw. “A Stroll Through the Zoo of the Future”. Archithese Schriftenreihe (Feb. 2021). p.70-77.

“If we consider our kitchen as the hunting grounds for fruit flies and birthplace of molds, our building’s facades as porous shelters for birds and insects, and our gardens as the stopover grounds for monarch butterflies, we might be able to call ourselves a proper host of the big party we call life” (77).

Hahn, Dorothee and Jan Westernheide. “Design for Farmed Species”. Archithese Schriftenreihe (Feb. 2021). p.62-69.

“Making farm animals visible in the landscape will be a first crucial step to involve the public and inform design agendas. Ultimately, design in animal farming is an opportunity for a more diverse landscape beyond human-centered territories, where we and our nonhuman cohabitants can coexist” (69).

Mollard, Manon. “A School Willing to Take Risks” The Architectural Review. Issue 125 (Nov. 2021). p.32-35.

“We talk about futurism all the time; being able to think about the future is what makes architects good. Now, how do we construct an educational experience that isn’t predicated solely on old ideas about location, language, timetable, history, and begin to think about new combinations, not just of typology, but of educational models” (32).

Schupp, Janina and Francois Penz. “Cinematic Rhythmanalysis of Architecture: Mining Moving Image for Post-Occupancy Studies”. The Journal of Architecture. Vo.. 26, Issue (Nov. 2021). p.1054-1081.

“Faced with the impossibility of extensive post-occupancy studies to enhance knowledge of everyday rhythms in domestic environments, this article explores an alternative technique by tapping into the medium of fiction film (1054).

Whorrall-Campbell, Frances. "The Queer White Hole". The Architectural Review. Issue 125 (Nov. 2021). p.60-63.

"Any wholesale withdrawal of labor is impossible in our current economy without sustaining oneself through someone else's: exploitative leisure has a price that must be paid" (60).
