Articles & Segments

Brey, Jared. "Our New Climate Reality". Dwell (Nov-Dec. 2021). p.60-66.

"As climate change accelerates, its effects are becoming both more obvious and more widespread, and Americans, like people everywhere, are contending with new challenges to their physical safety and overall quality of life. Extreme heat and drought, heavy rains, hurricanes, ice storms, sea-level rise, and floods threaten lives and livelihoods – and challenge the basic livability of many communities" (60).

Dann, Rachael J. "Postmodern Digging". AA: L'Architecture d'Aujourd'hui, Issue 445 (Oct.-Nov. 2021). p.38-41.

"Rachael J. Dann is a lecturer and researcher in archaeology specializing in Egypt and the Sudan, and is interested in "death, identity, aesthetics and visual and sensory studies." In other words, in multiplying approaches to the act of excavation and restoration, which we thought to be conducive to interpretation" (39).

Fei, Cao. "Portfolio: Asia One". Wallpaper, Issue 271 (Nov. 2021). p.118-137.

“Shot in some of China’s most advanced industrial facilities, Cao Fei’s 2018 Asia One film zooms in on the brave new world of the fulfillment centre, as seen by travelers from the future who tumble across a dusty factory” (119).

Kiger, Patrick J. “Healthier by Design”. Urban Land, Vol.80, Issue 1. (Winter 2021). p.60- 67.

“Developers, architects, engineers, and scientists are blending design and technological innovations to transform buildings into enduring lines of defense against disease” (60).

Nickl-Weller, Christine and Hans Nickl. “Cornoa-Impuls?”. AIT (Nov. 2021). p.120-123.

“Crises are always opportunities as well. The current Corona situation raises the question of whether and how the German hospital landscape could be optimized with a view to possible future pandemics. The renowned architects and healthcare specialists Christine Nickl-Weller and Hans-Nickl from Munich give their assessment of supply an organizational structure and of the role architecture and digitalization can play – for the best possible benefit of patients and hospital staff” (120).

Phillips, Lauren. “Evolving A&D Education”. Azure, Vol.37, Issue 289 (Nov.-Dec. 2021). p. 76-81.

“Upon further reflection, though, few of us seem willing to abandon the investment of time, money and passion we’ve made in our vocation to take to the barricades full-time; we sense, rightly, that there is work that is worthy of our attention to be done in our chosen field” (76).

Schoof, Jakob. “Gartenkunst aus Edelstahl = Garden Art in Stainless Steel”. Detail (Oct. 2021). p.10-12.

“15 years after Zaha Hadid, Snohetta again expanded the Ordrupgaard Museum near Copenhagen. The only visible sign of their work is a large metal sculpture” (10).

Sealy, Peter and Ricardo Loureiro. “Q+A with Fala Atelier”. Azure, Vol.37, Issue 289 (Nov.-Dec. 2021). p. 70-75.

Thoisly, Eric de. “The Building and the Document”. AA: L’Architecture d’Aujourd’hui, Issue 445 (Oct.-Nov. 2021). p.60-63.

“From ‘rehabilitate’ and ‘renovate’ to ‘rebuild’, ‘reuse’, ‘recycle’, ‘reconvert’ and ‘re-restore’, up to the more recent and more appealing ‘rehabitate’, there’s no shortage of words to describe the new – in scope at least – ‘moment’ in architecture...What this wealth of words reveals, if we continue along this path, is the existence of a range of methodologies” (60-61).

Welton, J. Michael. "Saving Grace". Clem Labine's Traditional Building, Vol. 34, Issue 6 (Dec. 2021). p.38-43.

"A major capital campaign aimed at halting the slow deterioration of one of this nation's most ambitious timber vaulted domes – at the Basilica of St. Lawrence in Asheville, North Carolina – is now underway" (40).
